UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA ACCOUNTABILITY FRAMEWORK

PART II. Universitywide Indicators with Campus Comparisons

Section 4. Undergraduate Student Profile

Goals

In September 2007, the Board of Regents adopted as a matter of policy a commitment “to the full realization of its historic promise to recognize and nurture merit, talent, and achievement by supporting diversity and equal opportunity in its education, services, and administration, as well as research and creative activity.” In particular, it “acknowledge[d] the acute need to remove barriers to the recruitment, retention, and advancement of talented students, faculty, and staff from historically excluded populations who are currently underrepresented.” The diversity of UC’s undergraduate student body is measured by many dimensions.

Measures

This section depicts the makeup of the University of California undergraduate population. UC undergraduate students are predominantly young — recent high school graduates — enrolled full time, in a residential setting. The vast majority of UC undergraduates come from California.

California is a diverse state in its ethnic, social and economic makeup — and so is the UC undergraduate student body. The second part of this section demonstrates UC undergraduates’ economic diversity, showing, for example, that more than a quarter come from families earning less than $45,000 annually and nearly a third qualify for the U.S. federal government’s Pell Grants for students from low-income families. In addition, ethnic diversity has steadily increased among UC students, and large proportions of UC students speak a second language and will be the first in their families to earn baccalaureate degrees.

In their scope, breadth and diversity, UC campuses are strong engines of social mobility for families throughout California.

Indicator 4.2

Full-Time and Part-Time UC Undergraduate Enrollment, Fall 2000 to Fall 2007

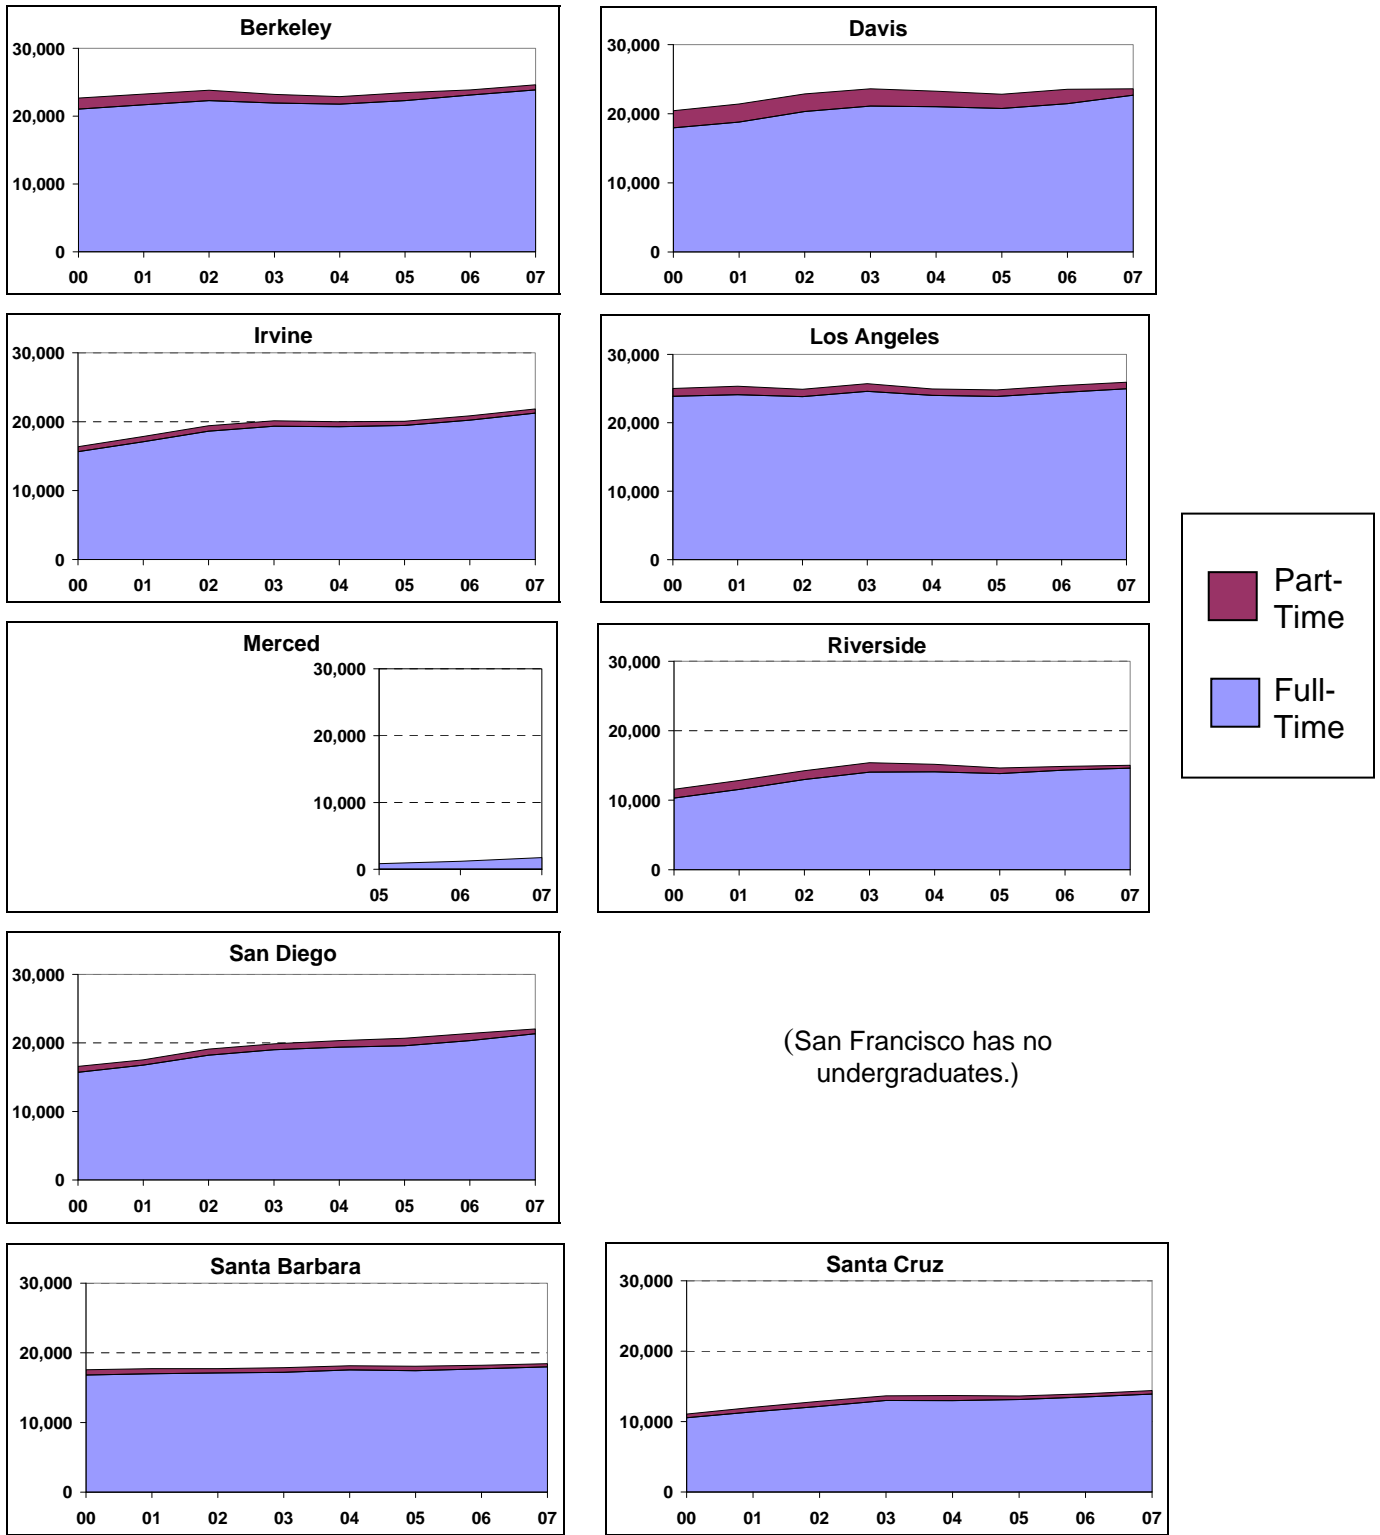

- Undergraduate enrollment fell slightly in 2004 due to limits in enrollment and steep fee increases brought about by a state budget crisis. They then rose steadily through 2007.
- Full-time enrollment enables students to progress more rapidly toward degree completion.

Note: Part-time enrollment figures prior to fall 2007 at Davis are inflated because some course units were not counted in the full-time/part-time calculations. More specifically, units earned in the basic writing course needed to fulfill the Entry Level Writing Requirement for some students were not included in a student's total number of units attempted per term. Consequently, the course loads of many of these students did not meet the minimum number of units needed to qualify them as full-time students even though in terms of total actual units their course load equaled or exceeded the minimum needed. This oversight has been fixed as of fall 2007.

Indicator 4.6

UC Female Undergraduate Enrollment, Fall 2000 to Fall 2007

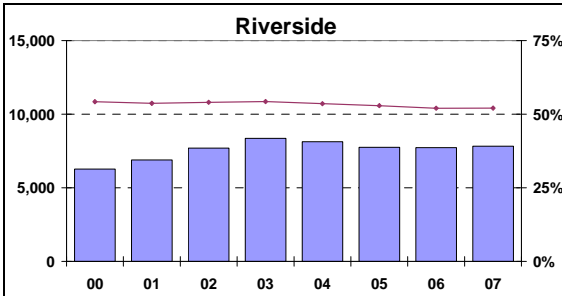

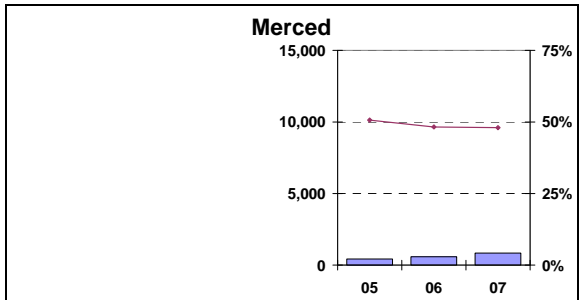

- The percentage of female undergraduates at UC is consistent with the nationwide trend of higher undergraduate enrollment rates among female high school graduates.
- Male/female ratios vary across ethnic groups. African American and Latino/Chicano males have markedly lower rates of participation than white and Asian American males.

Indicator 4.8

Age of UC Undergraduate Students, Fall 2007

- College students are sometimes classified as “traditional” (up to age 25) and “nontraditional” (age 25 and older). Nontraditional students are often working full time and/or raising families.
- Ninety-six percent of all undergraduates at UC are under 25, compared to about 60 percent nationally.
